Dear Teacher,

At Moran Publishers, we believe that reading is the heartbeat of learning. We are committed to nurturing a strong reading culture by providing high-quality storybooks that not only entertain but also educate, inspire, and empower learners at every stage of their academic journey.

Our readers are thoughtfully designed to build key literacy skills. They help learners decode language, understand sentence structures, and improve focus through structured reading. More than just basic skills, our storybooks actively develop reading comprehension—a crucial skill that unlocks success across all subjects and enriches a learner's ability to navigate everyday life with confidence.

Each book is a tool for vocabulary building, introducing learners to new words and phrases that expand their command of language, enhance grammar, and improve expression. With every page turned, learners become more fluent and articulate in their communication, both written and spoken.

But our readers go even further.

They promote holistic development by instilling life values, sparking conversations around real-life issues such as self-awareness, emotional resilience, and character building. Particularly for teenagers, these books open the door to deeper guidance and counselling discussions, making them valuable beyond the classroom.

To truly harness the power of reading, we encourage schools to adopt simple yet impactful reading strategies:

- Launch daily "Drop Everything and Read" (DEAR) sessions
- Establish classroom libraries
- Celebrate reading through literary-themed days
- Encourage parents to be part of the reading journey by purchasing books with guidance from teachers

We also urge schools to consider setting up reading clubs; safe, exciting spaces where learners explore books, build confidence, and grow as critical thinkers and lifelong learners.

At Moran Publishers, we are ready to walk this journey with you. If you would like to explore how we can support your school's reading culture through our publications, reading club ideas, or collaborations, please don't hesitate to reach out.

Together, let's raise a generation of thoughtful, expressive, and passionate learners.

The book is a systematically designed resource to help the boy-child understand himself as he transitions to teenage.

The book takes him through puberty up to young adult age with an aim of bringing out a "responsible man".

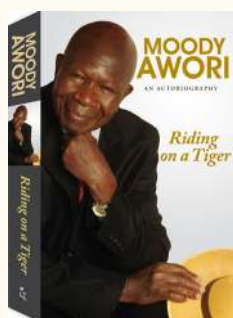

While the book is based on the Gikuyu culture, the underlying principles are universal and can be applied to other communities. It is a must-have for every boy as well as all those involved in the mentorship of adolescents.

Mr. Kaniaru is a member of several professional and environmental bodies, including the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN).

From colonialism's early beginnings to the struggle for decolonization and beyond, Call to Serve tells a poignant story of personal and political struggle, survival and, ultimately, triumph. Donald Kaniaru was born during the Second World War. Losing his father at an early age, Donald was raised by his Mother during the height of the Emergency.

His battle to obtain an education led him from the foothills of Mount Kenya to Alliance High School, where he graduated in the African A-Level class of 1965. As part of a generation of pioneering statesmen, scholars, lawyers, educationists, and others in the heroic struggle to build an independent nation, Donald joined Kenya's Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1969 after studying law at the University of Dar es Salaam. His career within the diplomatic corps flourished during a time of tremendous change in the global order. Donald was instrumental in shaping events that led to the establishment of the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) in Nairobi, the first UN agency to be headquartered in the Global South. Fan into Flame

Author: Rev. John G. Gatu
ISBN: 978 9966 349 55 2
Price: Ksh 1,800.00

Autobiographies tend to take a very narrow view of the world. A politician's life story will, in its broadest reach, only veer off the author's life to his or her country's political journey. A trade unionist's will tend to drone on about trade unionism, and so on. But not so John G. Gatu's Fan into Flame.

Like a flame with uncontrollable embers, this wide-ranging tale refuses to be confined to any narrow literary alleyway.

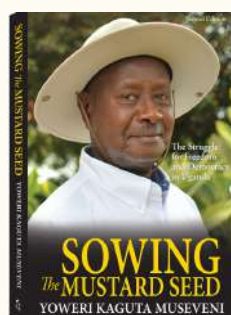

First, the versatile nature of the author's life history is as interesting as it is enlightening. From the time he ran away from home alongside other boys, keen to seek a better life in Nairobi, his was an adventurous and eventful life.

After a lengthy search, he joins the military as a signal officer. From the military, he works as a Swahili translator for a colonial military officer, church clerk, film editor and magazine reporter, before rising to be among the most influential church leaders in the history of Kenya. This career versatility – coupled with his numerous travels across the world – enables him to tell the story of Kenya from many perspectives.

The uncertainty that propels his life's journey also makes for interesting reading. For instance, when all his young friends board a bus – on credit – return to their homes after failing to get a job in the city, Gatu stays on because no one would pay his fare at home after he escaped. It is such awkward situations that seem to open doors to even more interesting things.

His military adventure reads like a war movie script. When he enlists, he is given two blankets, two pairs of shorts, a pair of boots, puttees, a mess tin and a tag with a number that he was to hang around his chest all the time. The eight-shilling-a-month job offers a peek into the conditions of African military officers on Her Majesty's Service in World War Two.

On the warfront in Ethiopia, at a time when he was strangely a heavy drinker and smoker, he is court-martialled and sentenced to 60 days in prison for a crime he insists he did not commit. On his way to Dire Dawa prison, interesting scenes unfold that see the man – who would later become the first African General Secretary of the Presbyterian Church in East Africa – throw an Ethiopian off a moving train.

Sowing the Mustard Seed (Paperback)

(Hardback)

ISBN: 978 9966 349 20 0

Sowing the Mustard Seed is a story of unflinching bravery. It is the story of unwavering search for a true, revolutionary and development-oriented leadership. The Ugandan President takes the reader on a tell-all journey of the sacrifice that he and other young Ugandans decided to take in order to liberate their country from the jaws of helplessness to which the first post-independence governments had conspired to consign it.

In this spell-binding tale, told in the first-person voice, Yoweri Kaguta Museveni traces the journey of his life from his first few months on earth, through his education, after which he and other patriots embarked on a journey of seeking empowerment to overthrow the despotic regime of Idi Amin Dada. It also delves into other wars, such as the long-drawn-out bid to neutralise Joseph Kony's Lord's Resistance Army and professionalising the Ugandan army, after many years of sectarianism. Besides illuminating the struggles of the past, Yoweri Kaguta Museveni shares his vision for Uganda and the pillars he has over the years put in place as President to ensure Uganda's future is secure both economically and socially.

Descent From Cherang'any Hills; Memoirs of a reluctant Academic

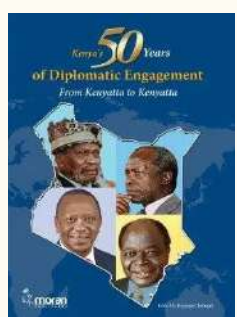

Author: B E Kipkorir

ISBN: 978 9966 343 68 0

Price: Ksh 2,640.00

The memoirs display a mastery of the tapestry of the Marakwet culture that scholars will definitely find useful as, unlike in history textbooks, the story here is peppered with sounds, sights and events lived through by actual people and reproduced from the perspective of an insider. The author goes beyond observation of the events in his life and has clearly done extensive research to help him – and by extension the reader – understand his world. On the governance front, the book is an eye-opener on where the rain started beating the country in the area of devolved governance. Based on his experience as a past Deputy Clerk of the Sirikwa County Council, the author puts the scalpel on the running of the local governments in the country, giving figures to compare the post-independence running of government to the colonial days. The insights from the author's experience would be of much value especially to policy makers and students of the devolved system of governance, which is now enshrined in the Kenyan constitution.

Kenya 50 Years of Diplomatic Engagement

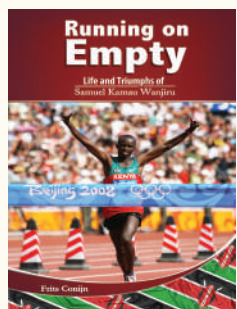

Author: Amb. Cheluget

ISBN: 978 9966 631 71 8

Price: Ksh 1,200.00

Kenya's Fifty Years of Diplomatic Engagement is a collection of experiences by Kenyan diplomats and academic essays which traces Kenya's early diplomacy since independence in 1963 to 2013. The narrative of the history of a young nation's diplomacy is told by the men and women who took the mantle of steering the nation's diplomacy during the formative years. The story of the nation's struggle to find a place in the complex diplomatic world can at times read like a thriller. For example, the stories by Bethwell Kiplagat as he traversed the jungles of Mozambique as he sought peace for that country is something that will be cherished by future generations. The description of the methods Kenya used to win the bid to host the most important UN urgency in Nairobi is amazing, to say the least. This is an important book; a record of the past that will be cherished by future generations and by friends of Kenya near and far.

Running on Empty

Author: Frits Conijn

ISBN: 978 9966 345 36 3

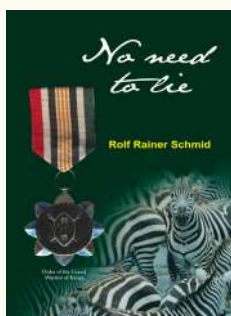

Price: Ksh 630.00

Samuel Wanjiru's life can best be compared with the movement of a rocket: going up with a high velocity and dipping with the same great force.

Running on Empty gives a captivating account of Wanjiru's childhood flanked with utmost loneliness, poverty and lack of identity. As a child, he comes face to face with rejection besides being subjected to harsh treatment at the home of his maternal grandfather. His zeal to change his future is the genesis of his triumph. His tenacity is rewarded with many gold medals written under his name. His desire to reign in the world of athletics sees him break world records and course records. He is catapulted into stardom when he breaks the world record at a tender age in the 2008 Olympic championships at Beijing; an achievement that Kenya had never had before. Wanjiru's sterling performances in the marathon fire him to glory, making him one of the highest paid athletes in the world. The young gold medalist acquires so much fame than he can handle. His gold medals start to lose radiance when bad judgment coupled with competition for attention from the two women that are very close to him; his mother and wife, weighs heavily on him. Over indulgence in the bottle as a way of suppressing his ever increasing domestic tussles leads to his early death. Wanjiru dies with many of his dreams.

Wanjiru had never been taught how to deal with his emotions in a constructive way. For me, it was clear for a long time that he would not get old. However, there is no doubt that in his short life, he achieved more than other people would in a hundred years. Wanjiru's lawyer Wahome Ndegwa observes.

Fame, Force and Fury

Author: Atwoli

ISBN: 978 9966 630 80 3

Price: Ksh 1,080.00

Heroes always remain extraordinary individuals with a message to deliver to the people. Atwoli, like Tom Mboya and Bildad Kaggia, is a hero admired for boldness and courage. He sticks to his beliefs and principles. Atwoli's contribution to reforms in trade union movements and nation building is incontestable. He belongs to that group of leaders who have championed change in their different fields. He is a good negotiator, persuasive and practical. He is pragmatic and calculating. Whether it is money, fear or respect, Atwoli is yet to face any stiff opposition for the top job. He has worked hard to grow the organisation into an influential and credible institution. He once remarked that he still had many more years to run the organisation and that it was only death that could take away his position at COTU. Well, only time will tell how true this is.
